

BORROWING AS A FINE ART.

Eloquent Exposition Given by a Young British Clubman.

RICH MEN "EASY MARKS."

Won by His Artistic Formula, They Hastened to Alexander Morton's Aid.

MR. ALEX. MORTON'S FORMULA.

"I'm flat broke, old fellow, and if you can spare me the money and not expect to get it back till you get it, don't you know, and not ask me for it till I give it to you, don't you know, you will save me from being turned out of my rooms sooner or later—probably later, dear boy."

HOW THE FORMULA WORKED.

"Why, certainly, old fellow, to be able to oblige you, I'm sure. Been there myself, don't you know. Will a check do, or must you have cash?" So responded the gentlemen whose names are given, disgorging the amounts set opposite their respective names:
J. P. Knapp, $250.
O. W. Burd, Meadowbrook, L.
I. $100.
Frank Hitchcock, $100.
Edward Kelly, Knickerbocker Club, $150.
Arthur White, $250.
J. G. Heckscher, Union Club, $100.
Horace Theobald, $100.
B. F. Kittredge, Union Club, $100.
C. T. Sands, Liverpool, England, $150.
J. A. Haabach, $100.
Francis L. Wellman, $15.
Edward Morton, Temple Garden, London, $625.
Mrs. E. A. Morton, 14 Thurlow place, London, $25.
Walter Victor Morton, $25.

Alexander Morton is his name. He is a languid young man, who wears garments that were obviously made within gunshot artistic. It was with an air as of one who challenges criticism that he rehearsed his little formula for the benefit of the man of law who was examining him in supplementary proceedings. There was no suggestion of vulgar eunty in his tone. It was placid, unemotional, rather patronizing than otherwise.

It was with the same air of discreet pride that the young man repeated the names of the men who had hastened to relieve his polite distress. Nor was the pride misplaced, for some of the best known club-men of New York had responded with cheerful alacrity to his plea. The list is given above. It includes a few English names, of which the last three on the roll are those of Mr. Morton's mother and his brothers.

It was on the application of the Knickerbocker Trust Company that Mr. Morton came up for examination. The company had obtained against him a judgment for $1,551.52. The Justice appointed William A. Crowe receiver for Mr. Morton's property, but his office bids fair to be a sinecure, judging from Mr. Morton's own admissions.

Mr. Morton was quite frank in telling of the circumstances under which he had obtained a loan from the trust company.

"I was used up at that time," he said cheerfully, "deniedly used up. What money I had with my brokers, Charles Head & Co., had gone in speculations, but I might-yes, I might, don't you know—have had $200 or something like that in cash."

"After that? Ah, yes. Some property came into my possession—money—er—from different sources. Where from? Oh, it was borrowed money, and money that I—ah—made, don't you know."

"I haven't got what you could call an income," he continued grimly, "but I have made money from time to time. I have made some money playing golf, for instance, and cards. I belong to the Racquet Club, you see. Of course, I have had to pay my rent and club dues in cash. I did have an account at the National Park Bank, but I drew it all except $307."

After his masterly exposition of the art of borrowing Mr. Morton was permitted to fade away.

OCHILTREE'S OTHER SUITS

Colonel Tom Can Now Dress as Gorgeously as Formerly Because His Stolen Clothes Have Been Found.

Boston, April 9.—A trunk full of clothing belonging to Colonel Tom Ochiltree, which was stolen from him by C. J. Roberts, formerly valet, who was arrested in this city last month, has been recovered by Deputy Marshal J. H. Waters, who will take it to Washington.

Roberts was convicted at Washington last week and was sentenced to serve a term of two years in the penitentiary. At that time he admitted that he left the trunk at a Boston hotel, and the police were directed to find it. This they succeeded in doing.

air of chaste humility he told Justice Schuchman, in the City Court, yesterday how he had replenished his exhausted exchequer by appealing to the sympathies of his rich friends in New York.

CHAMPAGNE—DIVORCE.

Mrs. Eugene Bissell Says Her Husband Gave Her a Wine Supper and Begun Suit Next Day.

Eugene V. N. Bissell, whose father, E.
V. Bissell, is head of the big auction firm of E. V. Bissell & Co., has begun an action for absolute divorce against his wife, Mary.
He has also commenced a damage suit against Edward H. Willis, of the Wilcox & Babcock Manufacturing Company, for the alienation of his wife's affections.

Mrs. Bissell is a very handsome woman, with a penchant for elegant clothes, which occasioned no little friction between her husband and her dressmakers. Only a few days ago two actions brought by the dressmakers against her husband were on trial in the City Court.

Mrs. Bissell says that the night before the summons in the divorce case was served upon her her husband took her to a champagne supper.

The Bissells were married August 4, 1888, and have three children, Mary, eight years old; Helen, five, and Eugene, three. At the time of her marriage, Mrs. Bissell says in her petition for alimony, her husband, who was employed as a clerk by Vermilye & Co., the bankers, was under age. They ran away to Glen Falls.

Mrs. Bissell's mother is now the wife of P. Fitts, who retired a year ago from the firm of Austin, Nichols & Co. The summons in the divorce suit was served upon Mrs. Bissell at No. 38 West Seventy-second street. She thereupon went to live at the Hotel Lincoln. Howe & Hummel will shortly apply to the Supreme Court in Mrs.
Bissell's behalf for alimony and counsel fee.

WILL DIE TWICE A DAY.

received several flattering offers from New York theatrical managers for her appearance in Camille.

She will probably accept the offer of Mr.
Proctor, providing she be allowed to appear at each performance in the role of Camille.
